TORCH SLAYERS BEGIN LIFE TERMS

MICHIGAN JUSTICE MOVES SWIFTLY FOR THREE WHO CONFESS

Quadruple Killers In State Prison; Evade Menacing Mobs

SLAIN BY DOORMAN

JACKSON, Mich., Aug. 14.—As the finale to a drama of swift-moving Michigan justice, two white men and one Negro today started serving life terms in the state prison here for the brutal murder and cremation of two high school boys and their "petting party" companions.

Considered secure in the penitentiary against any attempts at mob violence, the confessed slayers were to remain at Jackson until the high public feeling subsides enough to permit their safe transfer to the branch prison at Marquette.

It was a record-breaking procedure which put David Thomas Blackstone, 33, a Negro; Fred Smith, 23, and Frank Martin Oliver, 19, all of Ypsilanti, behind the bars. Confessing in the afternoon, they were given a trial of less than half an hour, and sentenced immediately to life in four charges of murder each.

In sentencing the trio, Judge George W. Sample, at Ann Arbor, declared it was no wonder that "the crowd is howling for vengeance." Michigan had abolished capital punishment.

Following the trial, a mob of from $8,000 to 10,000 collected at the Ann Arbor courthouse and clamored for the lives of the men whom the judge characterized as "fiends."

Just before leaving for Jackson last night the authorities received a report of an ambush by Bert Lore and Harry Wheatley, fathers of the two boy victims. It was said that they and their friends were lying in wait outside Ann Arbor to take the killers.

They had sprinkled the highway with glass to puncture the automobile tires and force authorities' cars to stop, according to the report. The officials took another route to Jackson and brought the murderers to the prison a few minutes before midnight.

The slaying and cremation of Vivian Gold, 15, and Anna May Harrison, 17, of Cleveland, O., and their escorts, Thomas Wheatley and Harry Lore, Ypsilanti high school boys, was motivated by the fact that one of the murderers believed he was recognized by Lore in a $2 holdup, according to the confessions.

The giant Negro, Blackstone, was the first to confess. Breaking down after extended questioning in the Ypsilanti jail, he disclosed how the two couples lost their lives. He implicated Smith, who confessed and in turn implicated Oliver. Oliver was taken into custody and also confessed. Blackstone and Smith are exconvicts.

The white men asserted Blackstone killed the youngsters, while the negro blamed the whites.

Following the solving of the crime at Ypsilanti, Sheriff Jacob Andres and other authorities battled their way through a vengeance-seeking crowd and departed with their prisoners for Ann Arbor. The captives' clothes were torn by the mob, and they narrowly escaped lynching.

YOUTH KILLED BY BURGLAR TRAP GUN

CLEVELAND, Aug. 14.—An unidentified youth of about 18 years of age was shot to death here today when he attempted to break into the rear entrance of a Celvian land residence, police said.

Detectives who investigated the youth's death said a shotgun had been placed inside the rear door and rigged up in such a manner that it went off when the would-be robber opened the door.

The youth was killed instantly.

FARM BOARD COTTON SUGGESTION MEETS ADVERSE COMMENT

Few Believe Plan Could Be Success, Even If Tried

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The Federal Farm Board's Revolutionary Proposal that the south destroy a third of its current cotton crop in an effort to force a higher price for the remaining two-thirds has been met with either rank skepticism or outright hostility.

Under the circumstances, there were few officials here today who believed the plan has much chance of being put into operation, or of being successful if tried.

None of the Governors of the fourteen cotton states has replied officially to the board. But their unofficial comment, together with that of the southern senators and congressmen, make it clear that the south as a whole has little faith in the efficacy of the dramatic remedy which the board proposes to apply.

Aside from the sheer economic waste involved in deliberately destroying a third of a crop now ready to be harvested, they don't believe it will work. The reasons cited are many and varied, but they all boil down to the point that it is impractical in operation, and uncertain in result.

The dominant note in the south's reaction is that there exists no way of making the plan effective. There exists no law by which a planter can be compelled to go out and destroy a third of his year's work.

The success of the plan would depend therefore, entirely upon the voluntary and faithful co-operation of several million of planters, scattered through fourteen states, and that is believed impossible of achievement.

For example, it would be useless for Georgia planters to sacrifice a third of their crop unless assurance could be had that Alabama planters would take similar action.

The temptation in the case of the individual planter, it is pointed out, would be strong to "let Georgia do it."

Public opinion might be relieved upon in some sections to compel acquiescence to a community program of destruction, but in others it might be entirely lacking.

Several southern governors also have raised the point of legality in connection with the board's proposal.

In a great percentage of cases, they point out, the current cotton crop is mortgaged to the hilt, either through advances from the farm board or through the local bankers.

Thus, the crop may be said to not be the property of the individual planter, but belongs to the banker or the merchant who has financed it through mortgages. The destruction of mortgaged property might conceivably lead to legal complications of a sort easily imagined. Thus, the efficacy of the plan in many instances would depend not alone upon the willingness of the planter himself to go along, but also to the willingness of the banker and the merchant who really owns it.

Regarding charges that Cyrus S. Eaton misappropriated millions of funds while he was chairman of the Continental board, Bishop stated that "Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales."

"Our investigation discloses that in some instances Mr. Gugle's letter misstated the facts and that Mr. Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales while in other instances in which Mr. Eaton or Otis and Company were interested in the selling syndicates, the sales were made at market prices," Bishop said.

Reporting to the challenge of the deal whereby Continental acquired International Shares Corporation, Bishop said that investigation showed the basis of exchange was supported by market values and that Continental benefited from the deal.

After declaring that the credit of Continental had been re-established under the present management without the sale of any of the corporation's major holdings, Bishop invited the confidence of the stockholders in the directors and executives.

"The size and extent of Continental's holdings ... entitle the corporation to be recognized as a powerful, constructive factor in the future of industries," he said. "This recognition can be given only to the management which has the support and confidence of those owning at least a majority of Continental's outstanding stocks."

Hykes' son, Glenn, was rescued by Humane Officer L. M. Williams after neighbors called him, according to officials.

After beating the boy with the chain, Hykes used it to fasten him to the bannister, officials said. During the entire two days the boy was denied food, they said.

When found by the humane officer, the boy was weak from exhaustion and was suffering severe bruises, it was reported.

Williams told police that the boy's family and other members of the community were afraid to intervene in the quarrel between Hykes and his son.

FATHER FASTENS SON WITH CHAIN

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—A body believed to be that of one of the missing Transatlantic flyers, Parker Cramer and Oliver Pasquette, was observed afloat twenty to thirty miles northwest of Shetland Islands today by members of the crew of the Norwegian Trawler Sjoglim (Cq), according to a dispatch received in London from Oslo.

The rough water made it impossible for the Trawler to secure the body which was cloaked in what appeared to be flying togs.

Cramer and Pasquette left Lerwick, Shetland Islands, Sunday on the last lap of their flight from Detroit to Copenhagen via Greenland and Iceland. They were believed to have been forced down during a storm over the North Sea.

BROOKLYN BEER BARON SOUGHT IN TRIPLE SPEAKEASY MURDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Detectives today searched the metropolitan area for "Little Augie" Pisano, reputed beer baron in Brooklyn, and other underworld characters in hopes of obtaining some information for the solution of a triple killing during a drunken orgy at a Brooklyn speakeasy.

Commissioner Mulrooney issued orders for an intensified drive for the elimination of speakeasies and other vice resorts in that section.

Discovery of the triple killing

from complaints of neighbors that a fight had occurred in the delapidated bungalow. Upon entering, a patrolman found the bodies of Angelo Robert Simonello, 28, Brooklyn; Charles Mastro, 26, Manhattan; and Joseph Barberio, 28, Brooklyn; lying amid a shambles of broken furniture and bottles. The odor of stale beer and whisky was still strong.

More than a dozen patrons had been rounded up and questioned today. An automobile was seen to leave the place shortly before 6 p.m. yesterday after three men had hurriedly entered it. This incident was accompanied by shouting and loud clamor. Soon a number of patrons, carrying hats and coats, were seen leaving the bungalow, neighbors stated.

Replacing the old state board of clemency which passed out of existence early this week when the law creating the new board became effective, the new board will start upon its duties at once. A secretary and several special investigators will be named. Salaries of the four members will each be $6,000 yearly.

Almost immediately the new board will face the problem of considering applications for parole of nearly one third of the Ohio Penitentiary population.

Laws giving the board authority to order diminution of sentences for prisoners good behavior and providing for the release of prisoners upon the expiration of the statutory minimum sentence, if the board believes a release advisable, were passed by the state legislature at its last session almost at the time it created the new board.

A total of 2,000 prisoners will be eligible for parole in September under provisions of the new act.

Reeves, the long-term member, formerly was assistant professor of psychology at Ohio Wesleyan University and for six years has been a member of the staff of the Ohio Institute, a welfare investigating organization. He was on the welfare committee named by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper to investigate institutional needs following the penitentiary fire.

Dougan, a native of Pensenville, Meigs County, is a Columbus lawyer and formerly was assistant general counsel for the American Insurance Union. He assisted in a welfare inquiry which his company made at the request of former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

Sharp, a Ravenna business man, was secretary to former congressman Martin L. Davey during four years in Washington. He also formerly was director of Public Safety in Ravenna.

The Meigs County judge's order also restrained State Superintendent of Insurance, Charles T. Warner from acting on any application of the association to amend its charter, and enjoined the association from collecting any debts due within six months.

In the past the personal property return blanks have been public documents, open to inspection to anybody at any time.

Desiring to remove any obstacles in the way of obtaining an accurate estimate of the tax payers' wealth, the special legislative committee on taxation provided that "neither the original returns of tangible and intangible property nor the assessment certificates made by the county auditor of the commission nor the classified (intangible) tax duplicate is open to public inspection except that the latter may be inspected under order of a federal court."

Balance sheets, copies of federal income tax returns and other returns which a taxpayer may be called upon to furnish to the state tax commission must be enclosed in sealed envelopes, and within six months are to be returned to the state.

At no time, under the law, are such blanks open for scrutiny to anybody but members of the tax commission and their employees.

A fine of from $50 to $1,000 may be assessed against officials who divulge any information except in the exercise of their duties.

Ervin's petition charged the insurance company "improperly invested its funds and improperly increased its limit of liability," but the application filed by the company in supreme court said a surplus of $329,167.89. Judge Peoples had no right to appoint a receiver because the company is located outside his county, the application was granted.

The executive said he would call out the militia to enforce closing of the wells, following the example of Governor William H. Murray of Oklahoma, in the event the operators disobey the new state conservation act.

The new law is expected to cut production of Texas oil 20 per cent in the fight to raise the price of petroleum.

"Keep out of this," the letter read, "or you'll get this."

"This" was a crude sketch of a large dagger dripping with blood.

GRANGE ADDRESSED
BY OHIO EDUCATION
OFFICER AT PICNIC

Despite adverse weather about 100 persons attended the annual picnic of nine Grange organizations of Greene County in Shawnee Park Wednesday afternoon and heard an address by Joseph W. Fichter, new assistant state director of education.

Fichter, who for the last few years has been lecturer for the state Grange, is expected to continue his affiliation with the Grange in the capacity of lecturer because of contacts he makes in the rural districts over the state.

Speaking here, he emphasized the importance of rural education. He pointed out that during the present period of depression the city schools are getting by satisfactorily and that rural residents should turn a deaf ear to all agitation detrimental to schools in the rural districts.

The speaker explained the influence the Grange exerted in the last state legislature, how the organization gave material assistance in the framing of the low tax laws and asserted the Grange was one of the two organizations which did not suffer from the hard times of the last year.

Inclement weather held down the attendance but those who braved the rain enjoyed a basket picnic in the park at noon and various games and entertainment in the afternoon. A scheduled softball game was called off, however.

OFFICIAL COUNT OF PRIMARY VOTE DOES NOT CHANGE RESULT

Election board officials, completing the official tabulation of votes cast at Xenia's recent Municipal primary election within an hour and a half after they started the task Thursday announced that a total of 2,074 voters visited the polls.

Whether this number, which far exceeded previous estimates, actually voted and their ballots were counted, could not be determined, however, according to Earl Short, clerk of the board, because many ballots were not marked correctly.

The official count resulted in only two changes from the unofficial vote credited to the seven City Commission candidates. Lawrence E. John, one of the four candidates nominated who ranked fourth, picked up ten more votes by the official court, while the total of F. W. Sanger, another nominee who stood third, was increased by one vote. The remaining five candidates neither benefited nor lost votes by the official tabulation.

The official vote total of each candidate follows: I. S. Dines, 1,052; Jacob Kany, 558; F. W. Sanger, 563; L. E. John, 442; Arthur Whalen, 425; Elmer W. Owens, Jr., 230; John Brannen, 203.

Mrs. Lucy Howe and daughter Carolyn of Pittsburgh are visiting with her sister, Mrs. Eula Kennedy and family and other relatives.

Mrs. Ida Shields, E. Market St., was called to meet with the executive board of Springfield District Friday at the home of Mrs. Cora Curl, to perfect the program for the next meeting in September.

Rev. D. C. Ross of Lockland in company with Rev. T. C. McCall, of Glendale, were guests Wednesday.

TOWNSHIP SCHOOL BOARD CUTS SALARIES IN HIRING TEACHERS

Sixteen of eighteen teachers employed by the Xenia Twp. board of education to teach in the township schools during the 1931-32 school year were forced to accept salary cuts amounting to $15 a month for the nine-month school term.

In announcing the township teaching personnel, following its regular meeting Thursday night, the school board disclosed that the salary reductions affected only those school teachers with three or more years of experience.

The schedule of salaries is based on a sliding scale under which in former years' teachers with no prior experience, classed as beginners, were paid $90 a month, those with from one to two years of experience, $95 and those having taught three or more years, $115 a month. The teachers who formerly received $115 will be paid only $100 during the coming term, salaries of the others remaining the same as before.

Six changes in the teaching personnel were announced and one more vacancy remains to be filled. New teachers are: Miss Sarah Rumbaugh, the 1931 Cedar Queen of Cedarville College, assigned to the Collins school; Elmer Spahr, the Old Town Run school; J. A. Spitzer at White Chapel; Oscar Shephard, at Old Town; Lucille Stroup at Hilltop and Ruth Graham at East Point. All these schools are one-room buildings.

Teachers re-employed include: Fay Murry and Leona J. Miller, the Goss two-room school; Helen Smith and Dorothy Fawcett at the Union two-room building; Elizabeth Hampton and Mary Pyrtle at the Mitchell two-room school; Thelma Spahr and Helen McElwain at the County Children's Home two-room school; Eleanor Babb at Rural Home school; Audrey Strong at Hyslop and Lillie B. Egbert at Anderson, Miss Berneda Huffman was again employed as music teacher in the township schools.

The school board estimates it will save $2,160 over the nine-month period through its salary slashing program. Five new busses will convey pupils to the various schools and the board announced a further saving of about $2,000 through a policy of advertising for bids from bus drivers for transportation of school children. Competitive bidding resulted in cheaper contracts. The board also expects to save $75 by means of fixing a uniform price for cleaning the school houses and yards during the year.

Horace Anderson, a board member who has been at odds with the new majority faction on the board, attended the meeting and is said to have participated in the various matters transacted.

The Xenia Twp. schools will reopen for the fall term the morning of Labor Day, September 7 with an enrollment of more than 500 pupils. The children will receive books and assignments in the morning and will enjoy a holiday in the afternoon.

The Xenia branch store of the Brown Furniture Co., 21 Green St., has been discontinued it was announced Friday. Stock in the store has been removed to Dayton where another branch store will be opened. The Xenia store will be open here until the latter part of month to receive collections, it is said. The branch was operated by Warren McKinney, Dayton, former Xenian, and has been located here seven years.

Mr. Wilbur Pitzer, S. Monroe St., who recently resigned as manager of the Western Union Telegraph Co., here, will continue to make his home in this city. He is planning to enter a U. S. Veterans' Hospital soon for treatment.

Sunday School and morning worship will not be held at the Second U. P. Church Sunday it is announced.

President's Cup

The President's Cup, won last year by Vic Klesrath in the Hoty Toty, will be raced for again on the Potomac river at Washington, D. C., in September.

Regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary will be held at post hall, Court House, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Important business is to be transacted at the evening. Hostesses for the evening are Mrs. Charles Darlington Jr., chairman; Mrs. Lawrence Shields, Mrs. Walter Dean and Mrs. William Purdon.

LOVERS' LANE ENDS

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 12.—By a master stroke of diplomacy, the storm brewing over Lloyd road, the scene of alleged love-making, bathing parties and other incidents which won for it the sobriquet of "petters' paradise," has cleared and the vicinity is now enjoying a dead calm.

Officials of Euclid Village, wherein the "paradise" was located, appealed the wrath of adjoining property owners, who sought to have the road closed, and at the same time pacified protesting taxpayers who demanded that it be kept open, by appointing a special guard for the troublesome section.

He turns away prospective parties when he believes it too late and brings an end to unnecessary noise on the road.

XENIA COAL CO. TO FURNISH CITY FUEL

Contract for furnishing seventy tons of coal for use of the city was awarded to the Xenia Coal Co. by City Commission Thursday night.

Five estimates were submitted by local firms and the successful bid, amounting to $314.30, was for furnishing seventy tons of mine run No. 3 Pocahontas coal at the rate of $4.49 per ton. The fuel will be delivered into the bins at City Hall.

With the exception of tabulating annual coal bids, the commission transacted only routine business.

COUNTY CLUB CAMP PERIOD WILL OPEN MONDAY AT CLIFTON

The 4-H Club Camp for Greene County will be held August 17-22 at the club camp site near Clifton. During the past year considerable improvements were added to the camp so that it is one of the best equipped camp sites in Ohio.

Total permanent equipment now includes a dining room and kitchen thirty by eighty feet. The painting of this building, screening of windows and adding doors were a part of the year's improvements.

The camp has a complete running water unit, supplied by a hydraulic ram pumping water from one of the largest and coldest springs in that section. Kitchen and dining room equipment is sufficient for 150 camp members per week.

Sixteen tents, twelve by fourteen and 108 cots are also permanent equipment of the camp organization. All of this equipment is owned and paid for and is the property of the 4-H club members of the different counties. The site, held by a ten year lease, is on the Little Miami River one mile southwest of Clifton.

The camp will open Monday with the first meal served Monday evening at 6 o'clock. The cost will be $3 with a food list and $5 without a food list, with an additional charge of 15¢ for each camper for insurance. A small charge will also be made those taking certain handicraft projects to cover cost of materials.

Regular instruction periods will be held in leatherwork, advanced gliders, Swedish weaving, nature study, first aid, recreation, music and musical games. Other periods will be devoted to the happy hour, rest period, vesper and campfire.

Campers will be grouped into tribes and the camp run as a democracy. Those persons attending state and district camps together with leaders and older club members, Mrs. Pearl Wittenmyer, county health purse and the county extension agents, will chaperone the camp.

Those attending state and district camps were Mrs. Leroy Jacobs, Miss Mabel Comb, Miss Mary Reigel, Velma Harner, Dorothy Anderson, Martha Shadie, Rebecca Galloway, Jeanette Armstrong, Rogers, John Turner, Wm. Wolf, and Franklin Bootes.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumor shall be upon rumor; then shall they seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients—Ezekiel, vii, 26.

OPPORTUNITIES AROUND HOME

A great many young people in Ohio are leaving their home localities each summer after they finish their education, and striking off to more or less distant places. The majority of them will obtain no exceptional success in these new locations. They look attractive simply because they are more distant.

Our state has every reason to expect great progress in the next 10 years. It has had its special difficulties, but many of these have been overcome and others will be. The standard of living of the American people is going to constantly increase. The sale for the products of Ohio will be very much more in 10 years than it is today.

This means that the people of our cities, towns, and villages will have a great deal more money to spend by 1941. They will be improving their homes, building better ones, equipping them with labor saving and entertainment devices. A vast amount of new machinery will be installed on farms, factories will be modernized and freshly equipped. A great many families that own no automobile today will have one by 1941, and many families that have only one now, will have two or more then.

The recently existing industrial depression has blinded the eyes of many people, so that they can not see this coming development. The salient fact of that depression is that the consumption of commodities has been in excess of production. It will not be long before there will be a great expansion of production to make up for this discrepancy.

All this development in our state is going to make possible a great expansion of business, and call for more professional and personal services. Many of those who pass up the opportunities of their own state in these coming years will make a mistake.

POPULAR HONESTY

Some folks think the American people are growing more dishonest. It is claimed for instance, that tests made with school children show that a very large proportion of them, if given too much change in making a purchase, will not return the excess, and they find many similar indications.

Such tendencies are nothing new. A great many people have always argued, as one example, that if a railroad conductor fails to take up their ticket, it is proper for them to use it over again. Yet this means obtaining two rides for the price of one, which does not seem honest. And then again, it is noted that in newspaper advertisements of things "Lost and Found," the articles advertised as "Lost" by the losers, greatly exceed those advertised as "Found" by the finders. Evidently many of the people who find valuable articles, never make the least effort to return them to the proper owners. This again seems dishonest.

But whether honesty is losing or gaining, it is up to every source of influence to instruct boys and girls on this point. The schools do not handle any more vital subject. They should give some instruction on honesty, because there are so many families where the smartly young people despise their parents and will not accept home advice.

In the main such instruction must come from the homes. If a boy grows up with dishonest streak, the home folks must have failed somewhere. In the hurry of work and play, they probably had no time in which to teach their children the things they need to know.

If we want our young people to avoid those temptations that bring sorrow and disgrace, we shall have to give them very much of our time, and make sure that they learn to abominate that yellow streak of character that leads to crooked courses.

POLICE METHODS

Condemnation by the Wickersham committee of the "third degree" as it is practiced, or is reported to be practiced by the police of the United States has stirred up a great deal of excitement and protest among officers throughout the country. Most of them say "it isn't so," or that, if it is so, nothing brutal or harsh is done to prisoners who are put to the question.

Unquestionably the "third degree" exists and is used extensively in some police departments. It is asking altogether too much to expect the people of the United States to believe that there never is any abuse or torture in connection with its application. That both are inflicted at times has long been a matter of common knowledge. Though most crooks are liars, where there is so much smoke, there must be some fire; and beside that, complaints about police brutality do not come exclusively from crooks.

But, on the other hand, it unquestionably is true that many of the honest complaints about police methods are exaggerated and highly colored, and show no great power of discrimination between justifiable efforts to meet extraordinary crime emergencies, and irresponsible and callous abuse of power. Some of the things mentioned in the Wickersham report sound ever so much worse on paper than they actually are. There are certain conditions and problems which come up in fighting organized banditry they go to war; and peace methods and rules are organized banditry they go to war; ad peace methods and rules are not always possible in time of war. This is something that ought to be considered as a matter of fairness when the Wickersham report is received.

How far the "third degree" would be necessary if the police of the United States were better organized, were further removed from politics, and were more closely co-ordinated throughout the length and breadth of the land is a different question. Resort to it is not permitted in Great Britain, and the police there are extremely efficient. But in Britain, politics is not superior to police administration, justice is swift and sure; and the country maintains a hangman for employment in case of necessity.

Third degree methods are a confession of weakness, but maybe the weakness is not primarily the fault of the police.

MY NEW YORK
BY JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Flashing down Ninth Avenue last night in a taxi, I glanced at a newly-excavated pit close to Forty-fourth Street—and I realized with a pang, that Joe was gone.

Joe used to come every summer and erect his tents in the one vacant lot of the neighborhood... He was a circus man of his own, with fine contempt for such outfits as the combined Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey troupe.

"Why those guys are crazy," he used to say, "to bring a show to town so early in the Spring. Summer is the time—midsummer, I always say."

He had a ferris wheel—midget style—and a merry-go-round; a freak show and plenty of booths for playing games. His crowd was various—some with striped sweatshirts from Hell's Kitchen, downtown, some with top hats wandered over from the bright-light district. Joe had the best time of them all.

IDEA

Two nights ago, in the middle of Broadway, I looked up and saw something. Which is unusual, in that flower garden of mad blooms. It was a name—ambling slowly across the 20-foot-high moving sign of the Capitol Theatre. What the name was doesn't matter. Just a name; and that's the point.

The Capitol, in picking names at random from the telephone directory and flashing them for all Broadway to see, has hit upon a very shrewd psychological fact: the deep and poignant yearning of the rank and file, all the Joe Zilches and the Sadie Schlitzes, to see their name in type, or, glory of glories, in electric lights on Broadway.

Each night the big sign pages some New Yorker. The person named becomes the Capitol's "guest of the day."

COALS TO NEWCASTLE

From the time the King and Queen of Siam let it be known that they were ready to give New York the once over, they were besieged by press-agents. Wrestling match promoters vied with the authorities at Coney Island for the royal pageant attendance. They were invited to theatres, steamships, factories, movie studios, skyscrapers and hotels.

But of the deluge of invitations which descended upon the King, one, I am told, captured his interest more than any other—though he found it necessary to decline. The manager of a theatre in White Plains, N. Y., sent a telegram urging the King to come and take a look at the Hilton Sisters, Siamese twins!

AROUND THE WHEEL

Let this man's name go unmentioned. If you insist, you may have it for a two-cent stamp; but guessing isn't hard.

He started all this current "master-of-ceremonies" craze in the movie palaces. He was first to lift the orchestra from pit to stage. He ran his salary up to $5,000 weekly in the process.

Now this Romeo of the morning matinees, this wowl of the night performances, is breaking in a vaudeville act on the "subway" circuit near New York. There are twelve men in his act and the total salaries don't top $1,800.

W. E. Gentzler, secretary of appointments at Columbia University's employment bureau, had a word to say the other morning about the fate of the college man in these hard times.

What jobs did he get for fresh-faced youngsters clutching their sheepskins and fanning forth?

"Oh, many kinds. I have placed 6,000 altogether this year. Life guards, hotel clerks, bus drivers, train butchers, soda jerkies, telephone operators and elevator starters are among them."

"The boys seem content nowadays to take jobs with a future at small pay, rather than seek quick money returns. That is a healthy sign."

All of which leaves me rather confused. To what is a soda jerker or an elevator starter promoted after a year of faithful service?

THE GERM IN GERMANY

'ALFALFA BILL' MURRAY LIKELY TO CUT FIGURE AT DEMOCRATIC PARLEY

WASHINGTON.—Any number of crude oil and refined petroleum products. Demoralization has ensued to a point where prices are irrationally low.

The government is losing large sums of money in taxes. The industry is operating at a loss. Unless corrected this inevitably will detrimentally affect all employees and the public as well."

It comes creditably out of his fight to improve conditions for the "sooner" state's oil industry, he almost certainly will have its "favorite son" support for the Jeffersonian nomination. Perhaps he will do even better than that, some of the other oil and agricultural states may back him.

For the second place on the ticket his selection is not outside the bounds of a remote possibility—supposing, of course, that all continues to go well with the gubernatorial career he is started on.

With his ready reliance on the Oklahoma militia and his bold defiance of federal authority (below that of the president or the supreme court of the United States) Bill Murray has given an impression of wild western irresponsibility to sedate folk on the other side of the Mississippi.

The truth is, however, according to the testimony of several conservative individuals I have met, who also are intimately acquainted with the governor: Bill by no means is as reckless as he appears to be.

Said one of them: "He holds a job connected with oil conservation, in a government department in Washington, which is the reason I can't name him, and is as orthodox a civil servant as need be" with whom I conversed recently:

"Murray is an almighty free talker, but he never acts until he's dead sure he can get away with it."

All wonders why an operator whose oil brings him less than the cost of production does not suspend operation.

For this reason: Suppose a large subterranean lake of oil, with the land atop of it, owned by a dozen different individuals, each with a well tapping the same lake. Unless all suspend operations, none can do so, or those who continue to operate will presently exhaust the lake; the rest will have had nothing whatever for their drilling.

Has not this difficulty always existed? It has, but it was not so serious a difficulty when there was less oil.

In the last few years geological knowledge has advanced and much more oil has been discovered. In the same period, means of extracting it have been vastly improved.

times before.

So I broke in on his argument and asked him—"Don't wives want their husbands to have insurance?"

MY suspicion was justified.... According to the insurance men, wives don't—not all of them, at any rate. He said that three times out of four when a man says he wants to talk over an insurance policy with his wife, she talks him out of it. He comes back and says it's all off.

The insurance man doesn't know just how it happens....Perhaps the man hides behind his wife's skirts (now that they are long enough again), but he's not quite sure that's the case. He suspects his prospects' wives think there's something selfish about insurance, or that the family can use insurance premium money in some better way, or that it's bad luck to buy insurance....Whatever the reason, this insurance man I know SHIVERS when a man says "I'll have to talk over this with my wife."

And THAT started it all over again. He smiled patiently and began another argument. After all, I was doing this for her, wasn't I? She was the one to benefit by it. Delicately he suggested that a man should decide those things for himself and tell his wife about them afterwards....And somehow I got the idea while my friend the insurance man was talking that he had said all these things myself.

It is true—ar isn't it—that wives aren't exactly eager to have their husbands get insurance? Hung bands believe in insurance. Don't wives? And if they don't, why DON'T they?

FROST
Frost is the same as dew, only it forms when the temperature is below the freezing point. There are the light frosts that make a display of frozen dew and may occur at any season of the year, and there is the killing frost that occurs in late spring and early autumn. Vegetation will stand the light frosts that occur at 4 degrees below freezing, but when the temperature drops below 28 degrees, F., the hardest forms of plant vegetation succumb to the freeze. It is known as a killing frost. The normal time of the first killing frost of autumn in the U. S. A. ranges from Sept. 15 for North Dakota, to Dec. 15 for the extreme south.

Hot Weather Misery In The Mind

by LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We start our consideration of various types of foods with dairy products, for that is how we all start naturally—with one dairy product—milk.

Since milk is the only food prepared in the human or animal body as the sole food of a growing individual, it is complete and perfect food. It is the only complete food.

Though many kinds of milk are used by human beings, American habits limit the term to cow's milk and that alone is meant below by the word "milk."

A glass of milk a day is probably one of the healthiest accessories to a grown person's diet.

Eggs, like milk, are deficient in weight than milk. On account of their well-balanced content and easy digestibility they are ideal foods for convalescence from illness. By instinct man has learned to use them with other foods to make up a complete diet.

A medium-sized egg weighs 60 grams, contains 6 grams of protein and 6 grams of fat, little, if any, carbohydrate, and yields 80 to 85 calories. Eggs contain a great deal of iron, sulphur, phosphorus and good amounts of calcium. They are very rich in vitamin B, and as much vitamin A as any other food product. They also contain vitamin D.

To adults we can obtain clean. But one of its disadvantages as a food is that it is easily contaminated.

For adult consumption it falls down on sufficiency and bulk. If you have no other food than milk it takes a great deal to supply an adult's energy requirements. An ordinary glass of milk containing 8 ounces, or 250 c. c., has about 160 calories. Ten times this—ten glasses of milk a day, or a quart and a half, would only give 1,600 calories. This is about half the energy value for a 150-pound adult.

The common saying that milk is constipating simply means that it does not have enough bulk, or residue, to stimulate the intestinal muscles. Infants have a limited digestive capacity, so that it meets their needs perfectly. For the same reason, milk and cream are the staple dietary articles of those with poor digestions, dyspepsia or stomach ulcers.

Cow's milk contains all the vitamins in varying amounts, depending on the grazing. It is more liable to

by MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

It's not only the wives who get heartache by the coldness and indifference of their husbands after years of marriage. Husbands sometimes meet with disheartening lack of appreciation when they do everything within their power to make their wives happy.

They don't always write to the Living and Loving column about it, but occasionally one relieves his heart by doing so, hoping to find out there's a way to win his mate back to his arms.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE": I have been reading your column, so am writing you for advice.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FAMED
by Phil

Apparently having a lot of time on his hands to think about major league baseball conditions in general and the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Browns in particular, a Gotham fan has come forward with a suggestion designed to stimulate interest in certain baseball cities.

Why a disinterested fan in New York should be the one to conceive the idea is almost as unusual as the idea itself.

Briefly, the suggestion is thus: that the franchises of the Browns and the Reds be transferred. He recommends moving the Browns to Cincinnati, which would give that city a representative in the American League, and transferring the Cincinnati Reds of the National League to Detroit, thus giving Henry Ford's city clubs in both leagues.

In support of the suggestion the following reasons are advanced:

1. The "Cincinnati Browns" would become natural rivals of the Cleveland Indians, in the same state.

2. The novelty of American League teams playing regularly in Cincinnati, giving many Queen City fans their first view of such players as Grove, Simmons, Cochrane, Ruth, Gehrig et al., would create a tremendous baseball boom in this city which is tired (tired is putting it mildly) of watching its present tail-end team getting nowhere fast.

3. Detroit, with a rapidly increasing population, will be a live wire baseball city with the return of business conditions to normalcy.

4. St. Louis is unable and apparently unwilling to support two big league clubs at present.

There you have one side of the argument in a nut shell.

Opposition to such a plan might be founded on the contention that any change from the established order of things would be almost sure to result in a furore, if not in Cincinnati, certainly in St. Louis.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that Cincinnati fans might not object too strenuously to the replacement of the Reds by the Browns, the fact must be taken into consideration that St. Louis fandom would be quick to resent the insinuation that that city is unable to adequately support two big league ball clubs.

It would be human nature for the Mound City fans, who do not turn out five times a year see the Browns play, to let out terrific squawks were any move launched to take the club out of St. Louis.

It is also an undisputable fact that Manager BILL Killefer is developing a promising St. Louis Browns team which may be a serious pennant contender in a few years. The Browns, with plenty of young players, are improving by leaps and we might also say, by bounds this season, and this improvement has been reflected in increased patronage.

MAN WANTED ON CHECK CHARGE IS BOUND OVER

Sought throughout the state for the last year on a charge of defrauding James Malavazos, part owner of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St., of $1,000 by passing two worthless checks for $500 each, Harry Deutsch, 37, was arrested at Sandusky, O. and returned to Xenia Friday in the custody of local officers.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith, Deutsch waived examination and was held to the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

After eluding arrest for months, the fugitive was apprehended at Sandusky, where authorities discovered, through fingerprint identification cards, that he was wanted in Xenia on the bad check charge.

AUTO CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND OUTING

Governor George White, Clarence Brown, secretary of state, O. W. Merrill, director of highways and Chalmers R. Wilson, commissioner of vehicles, will appear as speakers at a gathering of members of automobile clubs in central Ohio at Buckeye Lake Wednesday, August 26. An invitation has been extended to members of the Greene County Automobile Club to attend.

A program of athletic events has been planned for the day and the speaking program will take place in the new Crystal pavilion at 4 p.m. It is expected that the greater part of the day will be spent in family picnic activities, fishing, boating and swimming.

GAME POSTPONED

Rainy weather brought about a postponement of a scheduled American League softball game at Cox Field Thursday night between the Krippendorf and St. Brigid teams, who were supposed to meet for the last time this season. The Lang Chevrolets have a chance to extend their National League lead to a full game if they succeed in beating Wood's Barbers Friday night. The Barbers, however, hope to salvage one game from the season's series with Langs if at all possible.

DID YOU KNOW? - By R. J. Scott

ST. ADALBERT'S TO OPEN SERIES WITH MERCHANTS HERE SUNDAY

St. Adalberts baseball team of Dayton will appear at Washington Park for the second time this season Sunday afternoon, inaugurating a three-game series to be played on consecutive Sundays against the Xenia Merchants.

Al Barlow, Winthrop, Mauls and Lee are the four pitchers carried by the team this season. Barlow has done the bulk of the twirling, however, and is credited with having won ten games and lost only four. The other hurlers have clean slates with the exception of Lee, the latest addition to the mound staff who just recently joined the team after being on the pitching staff of St. Louis team in the Missouri League.

Tom Barlow, second baseman, is the foremost hitter on the Dayton nine. Barlow, fans will recall, was a member of the Xenia Reserves here about two seasons ago and at that time enjoyed quite a reputation as a slugger. Usas, regular catcher, starred for Kiser High School's baseball team a few years ago and is a consistent hitter.

The St. Adalbert outfit is composed of Mantia, Gadomski and E. Barlow. Gadomski was with the team last season while E. Barlow was affiliated with the White Eagle nine a year ago. All are good gardeners and hitters and cover plenty of ground out in the pasture.

Demski, third baseman, was also with St. Adalberts last season, while Hemsky, shortstop, was associated with a strong Hamilton team in 1930. He is a flashy infielder. Tom Barlow, second baseman, has the best batting average on the team and Veg, first baseman, while not a great batsman, is always dangerous at the plate and holds his position in great style. He was with the White Eagles also last year.

Following is the complete record of games won and lost by St. Adalberts this season:

SISTER OF LORAIN MAYOR ATTACKED

CHARDON, O., Aug. 14.—John Marland, 52, today was held in county jail here awaiting grand jury action on charges of assaulting Belle Goldthorpe, sister of Mayor Paul Goldthorpe of Lorain, O.

Justice of the Peace, Lester T. Reynolds bound Marland over to the grand jury under bond of $10,000 late yesterday after the man pleaded not guilty and waived preliminary hearing on the charges which were preferred by Miss Goldthorpe.

The assault was alleged to have taken place on the Durell farms near here while Miss Goldthorpe was picking berries.

ARMS FOUND IN FOLSOM PRISON

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., Aug. 14.—Extreme vigilance was exercised by prison officials today after the finding of three automatic pistols and sixty-six rounds of ammunition in a keg of nails.

That the weapons were to be used in an attempted wholesale delivery was the opinion of the officials. They were accidentally discovered by a convict whose name was not divulged.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK. Aug. 14.—Bulls in the stock market today had the satisfaction of witnessing a steady advance in prices of the industrial and utility favorites backed by a continuous stream of buying orders from various sources. In spite of the sharp reactions of the past day or two, the leaders have all risen to the best prices in nearly a month, while the "averages" of all but the rails now stand at the best levels since July 20.

Anjiro's Reply

Walk as children of light: (For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth.)

—Ephesians 5: 8, 9.

WHEN St. Francis Xavier met a Japanese, Anjiro, for the first time, he asked him: "Do you think your countrymen will become Christians?" "Not at once," answered Anjiro; "first they will ask you many questions. Then they will watch to see whether you live as you preach. Then, when they are satisfied about these things, they will follow Christ." Human nature is so today. Those about you, whom you wish to influence for good, also "watch to see whether you live as you preach." If you do, no matter how obscure you are, you are a missionary and apostle.

To The Stranger In Our Midst

Come with us to Church. Why? Because the Church is in the business of making men and women! Give it the support of your presence.

To Parents

When you do not go to Church and encourage your children to go, you vote, in effect, for its elimination from society. How will you vote this week?

Edison, Miracle Man of Progress, Made World Advancement Possible

* * * * *
With Over One Thousand Inventions to His Credit, the "Wizard of Menlo Park" May Justly Be Regarded as the Greatest Originator of All Time.
He Dislikes Being Called a "Genius."

NEW YORK, Aug. 14—To His present illness is the culmination of years of diabetes, Bright's disease and stomach ulcers which necessitated the 84-year-old inventor remaining on an almost exclusive milk diet. But despite his great genius in creating useful things, without which the rapid advancement of commerce and industry would not have been possible, Edison may justly claim to be the greatest inventor of all time.

Born in Milan, Ohio, on February 11, 1847, of Dutch stock, Edison came to New York in 1850 with his mother who was a teacher, which was lucky for young Edison as he was backward at school and soon tired of it, and it was from his mother that he learned much as a child.

His first employment was as a newsboy on the Grand Trunk, with a run between Port Huron and Detroit and all his spare time in the latter city was spent in the Public Library, where he garnered scraps of information which he used in the "Weekly Herald," a paper he printed on the train and sold for a price that varied with the importance of the news it contained.

He had a laboratory on the train, too, and one day while conducting an experiment he dropped a stick of phosphorus, starting a fire that caused the conductor to put the youthful scientist off the train after boxing his ears with such vigor that Edison has since suffered acute deafness.

The doorway to success opened to Edison through an accident. While sitting in the office of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Co., the instrument stopped. Edison fixed it and was made manager with a salary of $300 a month. He improved the instrument and formed Pope, Edison and Co., Electrical Engineers and General Telegraph Agency.

After the formation of his first company, Edison's rise to the summit was rapid. With the touch of inventive genius, of which he is the greatest example, he time after time accomplished "the impossible" until the world ceased to wonder at the miracles he performed.

A list of his inventions numbers over 1,000, among them the cinematograph, one of the greatest industries in the world today. Although he did not invent the telegraph, telephone or typewriter, his improvements made these inventions commercial successes, but it is to him we owe the phonograph, stock ticker, electrically operated street car, mimeograph, storage battery, and greatest boon of all, the incandescent lamp.

Edison has always resented being called a genius. "Genius," he said, "is 1 per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration. The three great essentials necessary to achieve anything worth while are work, stick-to-itiveness and common sense."

He works harder and sleeps less than any other leading figure in history and his brain is always busy with a new idea.

He has been decorated by every government on earth but cares nothing for honors, preferring the plaudits of his more humble fellow countrymen.

BELLBROOK YOUTH SERIOUSLY HURT IN ACCIDENT IN DAYTON

Suffering from serious injuries incurred in a three-car auto accident on Brown St. in Dayton Thursday night, Phillip Black, 19-year-old Bellbrook youth, was removed to Miami Valley Hospital where physicians pronounced his condition critical.

The youth's most serious injury was diagnosed as a fractured skull and he also received severe bruises about the body and an injury to the left knee.

Police were told that Black, who was driving an auto south on Brown St., was accompanied by Cramer Crowe, also of Bellbrook.

An auto driven north on the same street by Frank H. Libbe, Toledo, whose wife was with him, skidded in the street car tracks and careened into Black's machine, it was said. The impact opened the door on Black's car and the driver was pitched to the street into the path of a coupe driven by C. M. Ballman, 219 Forrer Blvd., Dayton.

Officers were told that Ballman had no time to swerve his car out of the way and that the wheels passed over the boy's body. The injured youth was rushed to the hospital by Chester Graham, 1003 American Bldg., an eye-witness of the accident.

postponed its picnic for a short time. This was to be at Hills and Dales the second Thursday in the month. The Greene Co. fair was the first week.

Rev. Ward Hartman will leave his mission in China this month. He will reach Shanghai sometime in September and expects to be home in December.

Misses Florence and Irene Stafford, Henry and Paul Stafford and Bernard Gibbons, left last Wednesday morning, for Cambridge, Mass., to visit their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders. They spent last Sunday with Rev. Leeming and family of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders expect to entertain their guests at their summer cottage in New Hampshire.

The relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Keiter and family, spent last Sunday with them at their summer home near Old Town.

Mrs. Russell Shultz was taken to the Miami Valley Hospital last Saturday. Her aunt Miss Hamper was taken to a relative in Dayton.

They both are in a serious condition.

TOBACCO PROGRAM NEAR GERMANTOWN

An extensive tobacco program will be staged at the Southwestern Experiment Farm near Germantown in Montgomery County Tuesday.

During the past few years several new experiments have been conducted and these are yielding valuable information regarding the effect of various cultural practices on yield and quality. Included in this list are time of setting, sucking, topping, and time of cutting tests.

A problem concerning which there is considerable confusion regards growing tobacco in rotation versus continuous culture. For many years plots with similar treatment have been grown at Germantown under both systems so that the results should be a satisfactory guide for Ohio conditions.

Disease specialists will be present to discuss the diseases that develop under both rotation and continuous cropping.

They both were guests at a weekend party in one of Long Island's palatial estates. From the moment Alyn saw Kelsey he had fallen in love . . . he told her her hair was like a halo. It was so startlingly blonde, almost white with blonde highlights, parted in the middle and drawn tightly, severely back from her forehead.

"Where is Miss Wellons?" Kelsey shouted.

"Oh, sir—Miss Kelsey departed this afternoon for Palm Beach."

The impassive English face of the servant irritated Alyn. He struck out his fist, missed the servant and hit the wall. His foot slid on the highly polished floor and he fell clumsy, bringing down a table and a costly vase.

They were sitting on a bench in the rose garden. There was a moon. A fountain spray tinkled and

The Theater

It's easier for a leopard to change its spots than for an actor to get out of his type. Consider the case of Monroe Owsley, who went to Hollywood to play Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday" (and did a good job of it), but who is now about ready to call it quits.

Sometime back he finally won a sympathetic lead opposite Joan Crawford in "This Modern Age," but now, in the retakes, he will finish up as the heavy.

play-boy with a glass in my hand", complains Owsley. And he evidently means it for his Metro contract is being dissolved by mutual consent.

He will go to San Francisco for a vacation and then return for one more try at Hollywood. If the kind of roles he wants is not forthcoming, he declares he will return to the stage.

Owsley created the role of Ned in the Broadway production of "Holiday." He played a similar role in Gloria Swanson's "Indiscretions" and his only picture in six months at Metro has been "This Modern Age."

That yarn about Dorothy Jordan getting her big chance finally in "Heart and Hand" which this column featured the other day, now turns out to be all wet, not to say premature. Poor old Dorothy goes back to her knitting while Helen Chandler will get the part in the Metro film. It is in line with most of Miss Chandler's other parts for the screen—serious, emotional. The fragile actress has played but one comedy characterization—Niki, in Dick Barthelme's latest.

Hollywood vibrates with rumors that another star has been discovered in Laurence Olivier, 24,

DECIDE ON LIVABLE LIVING ROOMS FOR NEXT FARM PROJECT

The Home Council of Greene County is announcing the major project for the women of the county for this year to be entitled "Livable Living Rooms," according to Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent. Although the entire project will include all problems pertaining to living rooms, the subjects to get special emphasis this year will be window treatments and arrangement of living room furniture.

The Home Extension Council members are representatives from each of the eleven townships who act in an advisory capacity for the organization of the work in their respective townships. She studies the needs of the women in her township and advises with the Home Agent the type of projects in her community. The members are: Mrs. Ernest Bradford, Beavercreek Twp., president; Mrs. Elton Haines, Caeyarcreek Twp., secretary-treasurer; Mrs. D. C. Bradfute, Cedarville Twp.; Miss Margaret Lackey, Ross Twp.; Mrs. Chas. Leach, Silvercreek Twp.; Mrs. W. C. St. John, New Jasper Twp.; Mrs. A. E. Beam, Spring Valley Twp.; Mrs. Chas. Kable, Sugarcreek Twp.; Mrs. W. G. Cooper, Bath Twp.; Mrs. L. H. Jones, Miami Twp.; and Mrs. John Ray, Xenia Twp.

In discussing this project for the coming year the council members emphasized especially making the subject matter practical. Miss Anne Blezricher, home furnishing specialist and Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent, are keeping this suggestion in mind in preparing the subject matter for these two parts of the "Livable Living Rooms" project.

TORCH SLAYERS BEGIN LIFE TERMS

MICHIGAN JUSTICE MOVES SWIFTLY FOR THREE WHO CONFESS

Quadruple Killers In State Prison; Evade Menacing Mobs

JACKSON, Mich., Aug. 14.—As the finale to a drama of swift-moving Michigan justice, two white men and one Negro today started serving life terms here for the brutal murder and cremation of two high school boys and their "petting party" companions.

Considered secure in the penitentiary against any attempts at mob violence, the confessed slayers were to remain at Jackson until the high public feeling subsides enough to permit their safe transfer to the branch prison at Marquette.

It was a record-breaking procedure which put David Thomas Blackstone, 33, a Negro; Fred Smith, 23, and Frank Martin Oliver, 19, all of Ypsilanti, behind the bars. Confessing in the afternoon, they were given a trial of less than half an hour, and sentenced immediately to life on four charges of murder each.

In sentencing the trio, Judge George W. Sample, at Ann Arbor, declared it was no wonder that "the crowd is howling for vengeance." Michigan had abolished capital punishment.

Following the trial, a mob of from 8,000 to 10,000 collected at the Ann Arbor courthouse and clamored for the lives of the men whom the judge characterized as "hounds."

Just before leaving for Jackson last night the authorities received a report of an ambush by Bert Lore and Harry Wheatley, tanners of the two boy victims. It was said that they and their friends were lying in wait outside Ann Arbor to take the killers.

They had sprinkled the highway with glass to puncture the automobile tires and force authorities to stop, according to the report. The officials took another route to Jackson and brought the murderers to the prison a few minutes before midnight.

The slaying and cremation of Vivian Gold, 15, and Anna May Harrison, 17, of Cleveland, O., and their escorts, Thomas Wheatley and Harry Lore, Ypsilanti high school boys, was motivated by the fact that one of the murderers believed he was recognized by Lore in a $2 holdup, according to the police.

Regarding charges that Cyrus S. Eaton misappropriated millions of funds while he was chairman of the Continental board, Bishop stated that "Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales."

"Our investigation discloses that in some instances Mr. Gugle's letter misstates the facts and that Mr. Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales, while in other instances in which Mr. Eaton or Otis and Company were interested in the selling syndicates, the sales were made at market prices," Bishop said.

Following the solving of the crime at Ypsilanti, Sheriff Jacob Andres and other authorities battled their way through a vengeance-seeking crowd and departed with their prisoners for Ann Arbor. The captives clothes were torn by the mob, and they narrowly escaped lynching.

At Ann Arbor, the prisoners

The youth was killed instantly.

FARM BOARD COTTON SUGGESTION MEETS ADVERSE COMMENT

Few Believe Plan Could Be Success, Even If Tried

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The Federal Farm Board's Revolutionary Proposal that the south destroy a third of its current cotton crop in an effort to force a higher price for the remaining two-thirds has been met with either rank skepticism or outright hostility.

Under the circumstances, there were few officials here today who believed the plan has much chance of being put into operation, or of being successful if tried.

None of the Governors of the fourteen cotton states has replied officially to the board. But their unofficial comment, together with that of the southern senators and congressmen, make it clear that the south as a whole has little faith in the efficacy of the dramatic remedy which the board proposes to apply.

Aside from the sheer economic waste involved in deliberately destroying a third of a crop now ready to be harvested, they don't believe it will work. The reasons cited are many and varied, but they all boil down to the point that it is impractical in operation, and uncertain in result.

The dominant note in the south's reaction is that there exists no way of making the plan effective. There exists no law by which a planter can be compelled to go out and destroy a third of his year's work.

The success of the plan would depend therefore, entirely upon the voluntary and faithful co-operation of several million of planters, scattered through fourteen states, and that is believed impossible of achievement.

For example, it would be useless for Georgia planters to sacrifice a third of their crop unless assurance could be had that Alabama planters would take similar action. The temptation in the case of the individual planter, it is pointed out, would be strong to "let Georgia do it." Public opinion might be relieved upon in some sections to compel acquiescence to a community program of destruction, but in others it might be entirely lacking.

Several southern governors also have raised the point of legality in connection with the board's proposal.

In a great percentage of cases, they point out, the current cotton crop is mortgaged to the hilt, either through advances from the farm board or through the local bankers.

Thus, the crop may be said to not be the property of the individual planter, but belongs to the banker or the merchant who has financed it through mortgages. The destruction of mortgaged property might conceivably lead to legal complications of a sort easily imagined. Thus, the efficacy of the plan in many instances would depend not alone upon the willingness of the planter himself to go along, but also to the willingness of the banker and the merchant who really owns it.

The difficulty of obtaining one hundred percent voluntary cooperation in an undertaking of this sort in the short space of a few weeks is admittedly enormous, if not impossible.

Enforcement of the plan would be left entirely up to the states. Chairman James C. Stone, of the farm board, made it clear that Mr. Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales."

"Our investigation discloses that in some instances Mr. Gugle's letter misstates the facts and that Mr. Eaton had no interest in and made no profit from such sales," Bishop said.

Reporting to the challenge of the deal whereby Continental acquired International Shares Corporation, Bishop said that investigation showed the basis of exchange was supported by market values and that Continental benefited from Continental had been re-established under the present management without the sale of any of the corporation's major holdings, Bishop invited the confidence of the stockholders in the directors and executives.

"The size and extent of Continental's holdings . . . entitle the corporation to be recognized as a powerful constructive factor in the future of industries," he said. "This recognition can be given only to the management which has the support and confidence of those owning at least a majority of the corporation's outstanding stocks."

FATHER FASTENS SON WITH CHAIN

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Aug. 17.—Accused of fastening his 17-year-old son to a stairway bannister with a log chain and keeping him captive for two days, Edward Hykes, 45, farmer of near Barnhill, today was in the county jail awaiting arraignment in probate court.

Hykes' son, Glenn, was rescued by Humane Officer L. M. Williams after neighbors called him, according to officials.

After beating the boy with the chain, Hykes used it to fasten him to the bannister, officials said. During the entire two days the youth was denied food, they said.

When found by the humane officer, the boy was weak from exhaustion and was suffering severe bruises, it was reported.

Williams told police that the boy's mother and other members of the family were afraid to intervene in the quarrel between Hykes and his son.

The youth was killed instantly.

BROOKLYN BEER BARON SOUGHT IN TRIPLE SPEAKEASY MURDER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Detectives today searched the metropolitan area for "Little Augie" Pisano, reputed beer baron in Brooklyn, and other underworld characters in hopes of obtaining some information for the solution of a triple killing during a drunken orgy at a Brooklyn speakeasy.

Commissioner Mulrooney issued orders for an intensified drive for the elimination of speakeasies and other vice resorts in that section.

Discovery of the triple killing

from complaints of neighbors that a fight had occurred in the delapidated bungalow. Upon entering, a patrolman found the bodies of Angelo Robert Simonello, 28, Brooklyn; Charles Mastro, 36, Manhattan; and Joseph Barberio, 28, Brooklyn; lying amid a shambles of broken furniture and bottles. The odor of stale beer and whisky was still strong.

More than a dozen patrons had been rounded up and questioned today. An automobile was seen to leave the place shortly before 6 p.m. yesterday after three men had hurriedly entered it. This incident was accompanied by shouting and loud clatter. Soon a number of patrons, carrying hats and coats, were seen leaving the bungalow, neighbors stated.

Replacing the old state board of clemency which passed out of existence early this week when the law creating the new board became effective, the new board will start upon its duties at once. A secretary and several special investigators will be named. Salaries of the four members will each be $6,000 yearly.

Almost immediately the new board will face the problem of considering applications for parole of nearly one third of the Ohio Penitentiary population.

Laws giving the board authority to order diminution of sentences for prisoners good behavior and providing for the release of prisoners upon the expiration of the statutory minimum sentence, if the board believes a release advisable, were passed by the state legislature at its last session almost at the time it created the new board.

A total of 2,000 prisoners will be eligible for parole in September under provisions of the new acts.

Reeves, the long-term member, formerly was assistant professor of psychology at Ohio Wesleyan University and for six years has been a member of the staff of the Ohio Institute, a welfare investigating organization. He was on the welfare committee named by former Governor Myers Y. Cooper to investigate institutional needs following the penitentiary fire.

Dougan, a native of Pensville, Meigs County, is a Columbus lawyer and formerly was assistant general counsel for the American Insurance Union.

He assisted in a welfare inquiry which his company made at the request of former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

Sharp, a Ravenna business man, was secretary to former congressman Martin L. Davey during four terms in Washington. He also formerly was director of Public Safety in Ravenna.

Balance sheets, copies of federal income tax returns and other returns which a taxpayer may be required to furnish to the state tax commission must be enclosed in sealed envelopes, and within six months are to be returned to the state tax commission.

An opinion by Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, declaring that "a private individual has no power to effect the appointment of a receiver for an insurance company," was furnished the court before the application for a writ of prohibition was granted.

Ervin's petition charged the insurance company "improperly invested its funds and improperly increased its limit of liability," but the application filed by the company in supreme court and a permanent examination showed a surplus of $320,107.89. Judge Peoples had no right to appoint a receiver because the company is located outside his county, the application stated.

At no time, under the law, are such blanks open for scrutiny to anybody but members of the tax commission and their employees.

A fine of from $50 to $100 may be assessed against officials who divulge any information except in the exercise of their duties.

FLOATING BODY IS FEARED AIR VICTIM

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—A body believed to be that of one of the missing Transatlantic flyers, Parker Cramer and Oliver Paquette, was observed afloat twenty to thirty miles northwest of Shetland Islands today by members of the crew of the Norwegian Trawler Sjolim (Cq), according to a dispatch received in London from Oslo.

The rough water made it impossible for the Trawler to secure the body which was clothed in what appeared to be flying goggles.

Cramer and Paquette left Lerwick, Shetland Islands, Sunday on the last leg of their flight from Detroit to Copenhagen via Greenland and Iceland. They were believed to have been forced down during a storm over the North Sea.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Twenty-six persons were killed and sixty-two injured when a powder magazine exploded at Macao, a Portuguese colony in China, today, according to dispatches received in London.

The dead included five children and damage was estimated at a million dollars. The explosion was due to the spontaneous combustion of ten tons of powder.

MEMBERS OF PAROLE BOARD NAMED; BOTH PARTIES GET POSTS

Toledo Democrat Is Chairman; Will Function At Once

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 14.—Two Columbus Republicans and two Democrats, one from Toledo and one from Ravenna, today became members of the newly-created State Board of Paroles.

Ending weeks of speculation in political circles, Governor George White and Welfare Director John McSweeney last night announced that the board will be composed of the following members:

Prentice Reeves, Columbus Republican, four-year term.

Charles Sharp, Ravenna Democrat, three-year term.

Leland S. Dugan, Columbus Republican, two-year term.

W. A. Cuff, Toledo Democrat, one-year term.

Cuff, formerly municipal judge in Toledo and Assistant U. S. Attorney for the Northern Ohio District, was appointed by White and McSweeney to serve as chairman of the board.

Replacing the old state board of clemency which passed out of existence early this week when the law creating the new board became effective, the new board will start upon its duties at once. GRANGE ADDRESSED BY OHIO EDUCATION OFFICER AT PICNIC

Despite adverse weather about 100 persons attended the annual picnic of nine Grange organizations of Greene County in Shawnee Park Wednesday afternoon and heard an address by Joseph W. Fischer, new assistant state director of education.

Fischer, who for the last few years has been lecturer for the state Grange, is expected to continue his affiliation with the Grange in the capacity of lecturer because of contacts he makes in the rural districts over the state.

Speaking here, he emphasized the importance of rural education. He pointed out that during the present period of depression the city schools are getting by satisfactorily and that rural residents should turn a deaf ear to all agitation detrimental to schools in the rural districts.

The speaker explained the influence the Grange exerted in the last state legislature, how the organization gave material assistance in the framing of the low tax laws and asserted the Grange was one of the two organizations which did not suffer from the hard times of the last year.

Inclement weather held down the attendance but those who braved the rain enjoyed a basket picnic in the park at noon and various games and entertainment in the afternoon. A scheduled softball game was called off, however.

OFFICIAL COUNT OF PRIMARY VOTE DOES NOT CHANGE RESULT

Election board officials, completing the official tabulation of votes cast at Xenia's recent Municipal primary election within an hour and a half after they started the task Thursday announced that a total of 2,074 voters visited the polls.

Whether this number, which far exceeded previous estimates, actually voted and their ballots were counted, could not be determined, however, according to Earl Short, clerk of the board, because many ballots were not marked correctly.

The official count resulted in only two changes from the unofficial vote credited to the seven City Commission candidates. Lawrence E. John, one of the four candidates nominated who ranked fourth, picked up ten more votes by the official count, while the total of F. W. Sanger, another nominee who stood third, was increased by one vote. The remaining five candidates neither benefited nor lost votes by the official tabulation.

The official vote total of each candidate follows: L. S. Dines, 1,052; Jacob Kany, 858; F. W. Sanger, 563; L. E. John, 442; Arthur Whalen, 425; Elmer W. Owens, Jr., 230; John Brannen, 203.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Mischief shall come upon mischief, and rumor shall be upon rumor; they shall seek a vision of the prophet; but the law shall perish from the priest, and counsel from the ancients—Ezekiel, vii, 26.

OPPORTUNITIES AROUND HOME

A great many young people in Ohio are leaving their home localities each summer after they finish their education, and striking off to more or less distant places. The majority of them will obtain no exceptional success in these new locations. They look attractive simply because they are more distant.

Our state has every reason to expect great progress in the next 10 years. It has had its special difficulties, but many of these have been overcome and others will be. The standard of living of the American people is going to constantly increase. The sale for the products of Ohio will be very much more in 10 years than it is today.

This means that the people of our cities, towns, and villages will have a great deal more money to spend by 1941. They will be improving their homes, building better ones, equipping them with labor saving and entertainment devices. A vast amount of new machinery will be installed on farms, factories will be modernized and freshly equipped. A great many families that own no automobile today will have one by 1941, and many families that have only one now, will have two or more then.

The recently existing industrial depression has blinded the eyes of many people, so that they can not see this coming development. The salient fact of that depression is that the consumption of commodities has been in excess of production. It will not be long before there will be a great expansion of production to make up for this discrepancy. All this development in our state is going to make possible a great expansion of business, and call for more professional and personal services. Many of those who pass up the opportunities of their own state in these coming years will make a mistake.

POPULAR HONESTY

Some folks think the American people are growing more dishonest. It is claimed for instance, that tests made with school children show that a very large proportion of them, if given too much change in making a purchase, will not return the excess, and they find many similar indications.

Such tendencies are nothing new. A great many people have always argued, as one example, that if a railroad conductor fails to take up their ticket, it is proper for them to use it over again. Yet this means obtaining two rides for the price of one, which does not seem honest. And then again, it is noted that in newspaper advertisements of things "Lost and Found," the articles advertised as "Lost" by the losers, greatly exceed those advertised as "Found" by the finders. Evidently many of the people who find valuable articles, never make the least effort to return them to the proper owners. This again seems dishonest.

But whether honesty is losing or gaining, it is up to every source of influence to instruct boys and girls on this point. The schools do not handle any more vital subject. They should give some instruction on honesty, because there are so many families where the smart young people despise their parents and will not accept home advice.

In the main such instruction must come from the homes. If a boy grows up with a dishonest streak, the home folks must have failed somewhere. In the hurry of work and play, they probably had no time in which to teach their children the things they need to know.

If we want our young people to avoid those temptations that bring sorrow and disgrace, we shall have to give them very much of our time, and make sure that they learn to abominate that yellow streak of character that leads to crooked courses.

POLICE METHODS

Condemnation by the Wickersham committee of the "third degree" as it is practiced, or is reported to be practiced by the police of the United States has stirred up a great deal of excitement and protest among officers throughout the country. Most of them say "it isn't so," or that, if it is so, nothing brutal or harsh is done to prisoners who are put to the question.

Unquestionably the "third degree" exists and is used extensively in some police departments. It is asking altogether too much to expect the people of the United States to believe that there never is any abuse or torture in connection with its application. That both are inflicted at times has long been a matter of common knowledge. Though most crooks are liars, where there is so much smoke, there must be some fire; and beside that, complaints about police brutality do not come exclusively from crooks.

But, on the other hand, it unquestionably is true that many of the honest complaints about police methods are exaggerated and highly colored, and show no great power of discrimination between justifiable efforts to meet extraordinary crime emergencies, and irresponsible and callous abuse of power. Some of the things mentioned in the Wickersham report sound ever so much worse on paper than they actually are. There are certain conditions and problems which come up in fighting organized banditry they go to war; and peace methods and rules are organized banditry they go to war; ad peace methods and rules are not always possible in time of war. This is something that ought to be considered as a matter of fairness when the Wickersham report is perused.

How far the "third degree" would be necessary if the police of the United States were better organized, were further removed from politics, and were more closely co-ordinated throughout the length and breadth of the land is a different question. Resort to it is not permitted in Great Britain, and the police there are extremely efficient. But in Britain, politics is not superior to police administration; justice is swift and sure; and the country maintains a hangman for employment in case of necessity.

Third degree methods are a confession of weakness, but maybe the weakness is not primarily the fault of the police.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Flashing down Ninth Avenue last night in a taxi, I glanced at a newly-excavated pit close to Forty-fourth Street—and I realized with a pang, that Joe was gone.

Joe used to come every summer and erect his tents in the one vacant lot of the neighborhood.... He was a circus man of his own, with fine contempt for such outfits as the combined Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey troupe.

"Why those guys are crazy," he used to say, "to bring a show to town so early in the Spring. Summer is the time—midsummer, I always say."

He had a ferris wheel—midget style—and a merry-go-round; a freak show and plenty of booths for playing games. His crowd was various—some with striped sweatshirts from Hell's Kitchen, downtown, some with top hats wandered over from the bright-light district. Joe had the best time of them all.

IDEA

Two nights ago, in the middle of Broadway, I looked up and saw something. Which is unusual, in that flower garden of mad dreams. It was a name—ambling slowly across the 20-foot-high moving sign of the Capitol Theatre. What the name was doesn't matter. Just a name; and that's the point.

The Capitol, in picking names at random from the telephone directory and flashing them for all Broadway to see, has hit upon a very shrewd psychological fact—the deep and poignant yearning of the rank and file, all the Joe Zilches and the Sadie Schlitzes, to see their name in type, or, glory of glories, in electric lights on Broadway.

Each night the big sign pages some New Yorker. The person named becomes the Capitol's "guest of the day."

COALS TO NEWCASTLE

From the time the King and Queen of Siam let it be known that they were ready to give New York the once over, they were besieged by press-agents. Wrestling-match promoters vied with the authorities at Coney Island for the royal pair's attendance. They were invited to theatres, steamships, factories, movie studios, skyscrapers and hotels.

But of the deluge of invitations which descended upon the King, one, I am told, captured his interest more than any other—though he found it necessary to decline. The manager of a theatre in White Plains, N. Y., sent a telegram urging the King to come and take a look at the Hilton Sisters, Siamese twins!

AROUND THE WHEEL

Let this man's name go unmentioned. If you insist, you may make it for a two-cent stamp; but guessing isn't hard.

He started all this current "master-of-ceremonies" craze in the movie palaces. He was first to lift the orchestra from pit to stage. He ran his salary up to $5,000 weekly in the process.

Now this Romeo of the morning matinees, this wowl of the night performances, is breaking in a vaudeville act on the "subway" circuit near New York. There are twelve people in his act and the total salaries don't top $1,800.

W. E. Gentzler, secretary of appointments at Columbia University's employment bureau, had a word to say the other morning about the fate of the college man in these hard times.

What jobs did he get for fresh-faced youngsters clutching their sheepskins and faring forth?

"Oh, many kinds. I have placed 6,000 altogether this year. Like guards, hotel clerks, bus drivers, train butchers, soda jerkers, telephone operators and elevator starters are among them.

The boys seem content nowadays to take jobs with a future at small pay, rather than seek quick money returns. That is a dead letter.

All of which leaves me rather confused. To what is a soda jerker or an elevator starter promoted after a year of faithful service?

THE GERM IN GERMANY

WASHINGTON.—Any number of crude oil and refined petroleum products. Demoralization has ensued to a point where prices are irrationaly low.

The government is losing large sums of money in taxes. The industry is operating at a loss. Unless corrected this inevitably will detrimentally affect all employees and the public as well."

Briefly as explained by bureau of mines experts, pointing to the bituminous area, it is a case of the soft coal situation over again—another rapidly sickening industry.

In fact, it is a worse case than soft coal, add the experts; for oil wastes faster than coal and there is not nearly so much of it.

"Alfalfa Bill" is trying to head off this disaster, and that element of officialdom which understands the danger commands him for his effort and wishes he could be transferred to the bituminous region when his task in the oil fields is completed—if he succeeds there.

The governor's policy, from all accounts, is warmly approved by the small oil operators, who have been going bankrupt at a great rate, producing at a loss.

His opposition comes from the big companies.

Why? Because the big fellows know they can outlast the little ones, and plan to gobble up all the oil pools and have an ultimate monopoly, answer the experts.

One wonders why an operator whose oil brings him less than the cost of production does not suspend operation.

For this reason:

Suppose a large subterranean lake of oil, with the land atop of it, owned by a dozen different individuals, each with a well tapping the same lake. Unless all suspend operations, none can do so, or those who continue to operate will presently exhaust the lake; the rest will have had nothing whatever for their drilling.

Has not this difficulty always existed?

It has, but it was not so serious a difficulty when there was less oil. In the last few years geological knowledge has advanced and much more oil has been discovered. In the same period, means of extracting it have been vastly improved.

Indeed, comment at the interior department and at the commerce department's bureau of mines, where the national oil resources are a matter of deep interest to officials, is distinctly friendly to "Alfalfa Bill." Why this is so may be judged from the conclusions of a committee headed by the eminent engineer, Mark L. Requa, which reported in June concerning the western oil situation:

"I don't use tobacco in any form or drink nor run with other women. I have her name on everything I have got and have made my will leaving everything to her. Now what do you think I ought to do? I don't want to break up my home for the children's sake. No one knows but we are the happiest family, but we are not. I have asked her why she can't be as she used to be, and she says she is, but she is not, and she says she is, but she is not."

"Alfalfa Bill" has bitten off a formidable mouthful.

He has the big oil operators yet to reckon with. What finally will develop from his defiance of the lower federal courts remains to be tested. That he is not on his way to a show-down with the antitrust law is no certainty.

Nevertheless, he is creating a reputation for himself that promises the danger commands him for his effort and wishes he could be transferred to the bituminous region when his task in the oil fields is completed—if he succeeds there.

Apparently having a lot of time on his hands to think about major league baseball conditions in general and the Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Browns in particular, a Gotham fan has come forward with a suggestion designed to stimulate interest in certain baseball cities.

Why a disinterested fan in New York should be the one to conceive the idea is almost as unusual as the idea itself.

Briefly, the suggestion is thus: that the franchises of the Browns and the Reds be transferred. He recommends moving the Browns to Cincinnati, which would give that city a representative in the American League, and transferring the Cincinnati Reds of the National League to Detroit, thus giving Henry Ford's city clubs in both leagues.

In support of the suggestion the following reasons are advanced:

1. The "Cincinnati" Browns would become natural rivals of the Cleveland Indians, in the same

2. The novelty of American League teams playing regularly in Cincinnati, giving many Queen City fans their first view of such players as Grove, Simmons, Cochrane, Ruth, Gehrig et al., would create a tremendous baseball boom in this city which is tired (tired is putting it mildly) of watching its present tail-end team getting nowhere fast.

3. Detroit, with a rapidly increasing population, will be a live wire-baseball city with the return of business conditions to normalcy.

4. St. Louis is unable and apparently unwilling to support two big league clubs at present.

There you have one side of the argument in a nut shell.

Opposition to such a plan might be founded on the contention that any change from the established order of things would be almost sure to result in a furore, if not in Cincinnati, certainly in St. Louis.

Admitting, for the sake of argument, that Cincinnati fans might not object too strenuously to the replacement of the Reds by the Browns, the fact must be taken into consideration that St. Louis fans would be quick to resent the insinuation that that city is unable to adequately support two big league ball clubs.

It would be human nature for the Mound City fans, who do not turn out five times a year to see the Brown play, to let out terrific squawks were any move launched to take the club out of St. Louis.

It is also an undisputable fact that Manager Bill Killefer is developing a promising St. Louis Browns team which may be a serious pennant contender in a few years. The Browns, with plenty of young players, are improving by leaps and we might also say, by bounds this season, and this improvement has been reflected in increased patronage.

MAN WANTED ON CHECK CHARGE IS BOUND OVER

Sought throughout the state for the last year on a charge of defrauding James Malavazos, part owner of the Xenia Candy Kitchen, E. Main St., of $1,000 by passing two worthless checks for $500 each, Harry Deutsch, 37, was arrested at Sandusky, O., and returned to Xenia Friday in the custody of local officers.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith, Deutsch waived examination and was held to the grand jury under $1,000 bond.

After eluding arrest for months, the fugitive was apprehended at Sandusky, where authorities discovered, through fingerprint identification cards, that he was wanted in Xenia on the bad check charge.

AUTO CLUB MEMBERS TO ATTEND OUTING

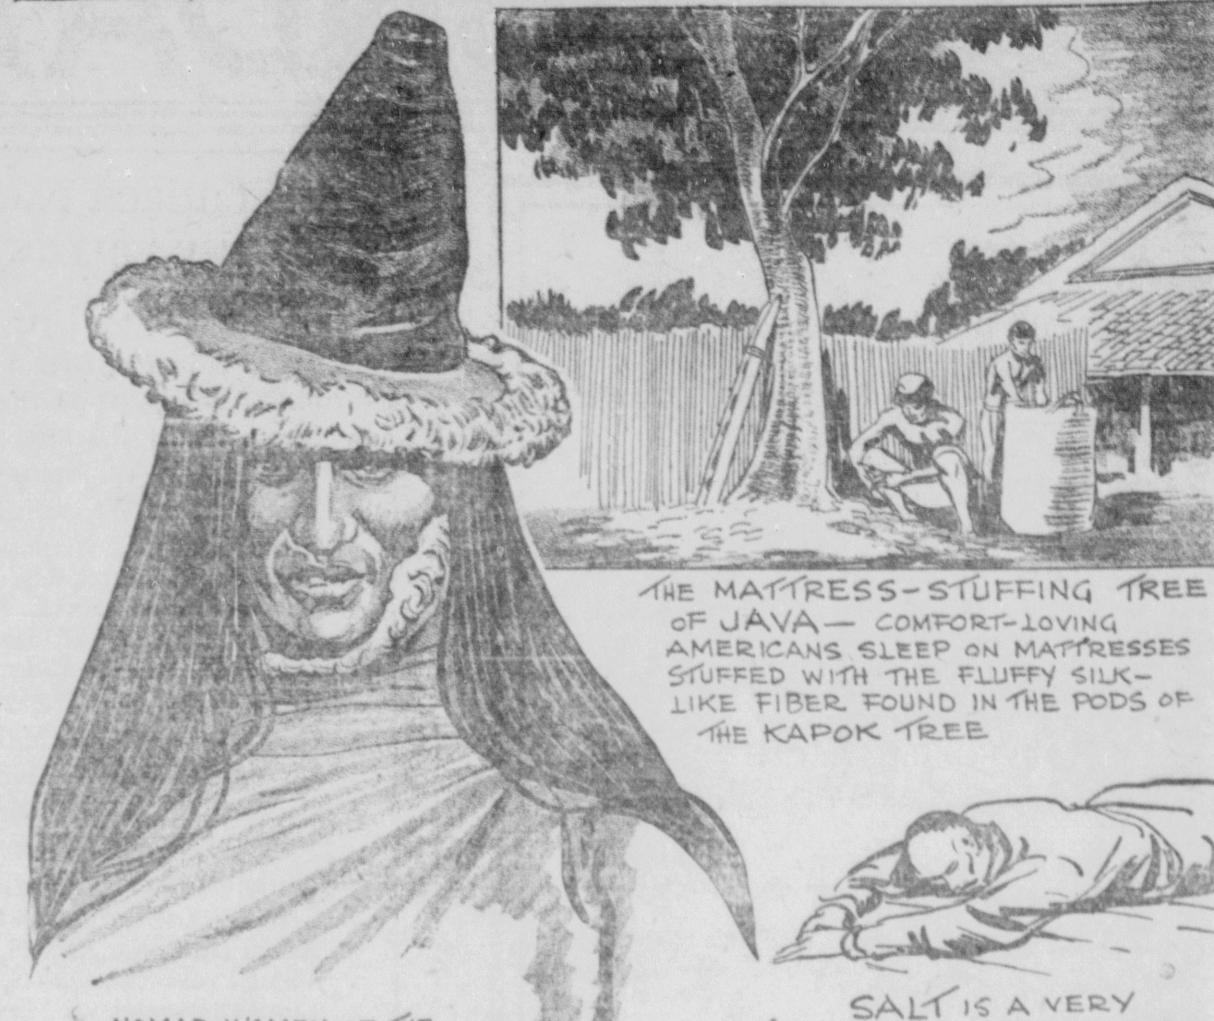

Governor George White, Clarence Brown, secretary of state, O. W. Merrill, director of highways and Chalmers R. Wilson, commissioner of vehicles, will appear as speakers at a gathering of members of automobile clubs in central Ohio at Buckeye Lake Wednesday, August 26. An invitation has been extended to members of the Greene County Automobile Club to attend.

A program of athletic events has been planned for the day and the speaking program will take place in the new Crystal pavilion at 4 p.m. It is expected that the greater part of the day will be spent in family picnic activities, fishing, boating and swimming.

GAME POSTPONED

Rainy weather brought about a postponement of a scheduled American League softball game at Cox Field Thursday night between the Kippendorf and St. Brigid teams, who were supposed to meet for the last time this season. The Lang Chevrolets have a chance to extend their National League lead to a full game if they succeed in beating Wood's Barbers Friday night. The Barbers, however, hope to salvage one game from the season's series with Langs if at all possible.

ST. ADALBERT'S TO OPEN SERIES WITH MERCHANTS HERE SUNDAY

St. Adalberts baseball team of Dayton will appear at Washington Park for the second time this season Sunday afternoon, inaugurating a three-game series to be played on consecutive Sundays against the Xenia Merchants.

The Dayton nine, runnerup to the Special Papers for the city championship of Dayton last year, was eliminated in the finals of an elimination tournament to determine Dayton's representative in the national amateur tourney last season.

This summer the St. Adalberts team, stronger if anything than a year ago, has compiled an impressive record on the diamond, having won thirteen games and lost only four. Only a few weeks ago this team smacked the Xenia Merchants 9 to 2, but the forthcoming three-game series will provide the local team with an opportunity to make amends for this decisive drubbing.

While making no predictions the Merchants will win the series. Manager Jess Chambliss points out that the Xenia team has been strengthened by new material in several positions since the recent game with St. Adalberts and he is confident all the series contests will be close.

The probable starting lineup for St. Adalberts Sunday will include Demski at third base, Gadomski in left field, T. Barlow at second base, Hensley at shortstop, Usas catching, E. Barlow in center field, Veg at first base, Mantlo in right field and either Al Barlow or Lee assigned to pitch the game.

Al Barlow, Wintrop, Mauls and Lee are the four pitchers carried by the team this season. Barlow has done the bulk of the twirling, however, and is credited with having won ten games and lost only four. The other hurlers have clean slates with the exception of Lee, the latest addition to the mound staff who just recently joined the team after being on the pitching staff of a St. Louis team in the Missouri League.

Tom Barlow, second baseman, is the foremost hitter on the Dayton nine. Barlow, fans will recall, was a member of the Xenia Reserves here about two seasons ago and at that time enjoyed quite a reputation as a slugger. Usas, regular catcher, starred for Kiser High School's baseball team a few years ago and is a consistent hitter.

The St. Adalbert outfield is composed of Mantlo, Gadomski and E. Barlow. Gadomski was with the team last season while E. Barlow was affiliated with the White Eagle nine a year ago. All are good gardeners and hitters and cover plenty of ground out in the pasture.

Demski, third baseman, was also with St. Adalberts last season, while Hensley, shortstop, was associated with a strong Hamilton team in 1930. He is a flashy infielder. Tom Barlow, second baseman, has the best batting average on the team and Veg, first baseman, while not a great batman, is always dangerous at the plate and fields his position in great style. He was with the White Eagles also last year.

Following is the complete record of games won and lost by St. Adalberts this season:

Anjiro's Reply

Walk as children of light: (For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth).

—Ephesians 5: 8, 9.

WHEN St. Francis Xavier met a Japanese, Anjiro, for the first time, he asked him: "Do you think your countrymen will become Christians?" "Not at once," answered Anjiro; "first they will ask you many questions. Then they will watch to see whether you live as you preach. Then, when they are satisfied about these things, they will follow Christ." Human nature is so today. Those about you, whom you wish to influence for good, also "watch to see whether you live as you preach." If you do, no matter how obscure you are, you are a missionary and apostle.

To The Stranger In Our Midst

Come with us to Church. Why? Because the Church is in the business of making men and women! Give it the support of your presence.

To Parents

When you do not go to Church and encourage your children to go, you vote, in effect, for its elimination from society. How will you vote this week?

Edison, Miracle Man of Progress, Made World Advancement Possible

* * * * *
With Over One Thousand Inventions to His Credit, the "Wizard of Menlo Park" May Justly Be Regarded as the Greatest Originator of All Time.
He Dislikes Being Called a "Genius."

INVENTOR AND FIRST PHONOGRAPH

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—To Thomas A. Edison, popularly called the "Wizard of Menlo Park," more than to any other man, does the world owe its amazing progress. Principally because he has devoted his great genius to creating useful things, without which the rapid advancement of commerce and industry would not have been possible, Edison may justly claim to be the greatest inventor of all time.

Born in Milan, Ohio, on February 11, 1847, of Dutch stock, Edison came to New York in 1850 with his mother who was a teacher, which was lucky for young Edison as he was backward at school and soon tired of it, and it was from his mother that he learned much as a child.

His first employment was as a newsboy on the Grand Trunk, with a run between Port Huron and Detroit and all the spare time in the latter city was spent in the Public Library, where he gathered scraps of information which he used in the "Weekly Herald," a paper he printed on the train and sold for a price that varied with the importance of the news it contained.

He had a laboratory on the train, too, and one day while conducting an experiment he dropped a stick of phosphorus, starting a fire that caused the conductor to put the youthful scientist off the train after boxing his ears with such vigor that Edison has since suffered acute deafness.

The doorway to success opened to Edison through an accident. While sitting in the office of the Gold and Stock Telegraph Co., the instrument stopped. Edison fixed it and was made manager with a salary of $300 a month. He improved the instrument and formed Pope, Edison and Co., Electrical Engineers and General Telegraph Agency.

After the formation of his first company, Edison's rise to the summit was rapid. With the touch of inventive genius, of which he is the greatest example, he time after time accomplished "the impossible" until the world ceased to wonder at the miracles he performed.

A list of his inventions numbers over 1,000, among them the cinematograph, one of the greatest industries in the world today. Although he did not invent the telegraph, telephone and typewriter, his improvements made these inventions commercial successes, but it is to him we owe the phonograph, stock ticker, electrically operated street car, mimeograph, storage battery, and greatest boon of all, the incandescent lamp.

Edison has always resented being called a genius. "Genius," he said, "is 1 per cent inspiration and 99 per cent perspiration. The three great essentials necessary to achieve anything worth while are work, stick-to-itiveness and common sense."

He works harder and sleeps less than any other leading figure in history and his brain is always busy with a new idea.

He has been decorated by every government on earth but cares nothing for honors, preferring the plaudits of his more humble fellow countrymen.

BELLBROOK YOUTH SERIOUSLY HURT IN ACCIDENT IN DAYTON

Suffering from serious injuries incurred in a three-car auto accident on Brown St. in Dayton Thursday night, Phillip Black, 19-year-old Bellbrook youth, was removed to Miami Valley Hospital where physicians pronounced his condition critical.

The youth's most serious injury was diagnosed as a fractured skull and he also received severe bruises about the body and an injury to the left knee.

Officers were told that Ballman had no time to swerve his car out of the way and that the wheels passed over the boy's body. The injured youth was rushed to the hospital by Chester Graham, 1003 American Bldg., an eye-witness of the accident.

Police were told that Black, who was driving an auto south on Brown St., was accompanied by Cramer Crowe, also of Bellbrook.

TOBACCO PROGRAM NEAR GERMANTOWN

An extensive tobacco program will be staged at the Southwestern Experiment Farm near Germantown in Montgomery County Tuesday.

During the past few years several new experiments have been conducted and these are yielding valuable information regarding the effect of various cultural practices on yield and quality. Included in this list are time of setting, sucking, topping, and time of cutting tests.

A problem concerning which there is considerable confusion regards growing tobacco in rotation versus continuous culture. For many years plots with similar treatments have been grown at Germantown under both systems so that the results should be a satisfactory guide for Ohio conditions. Disease specialists will be present to discuss the diseases that develop under both rotation and continuous cropping.

The Theater

It's easier for a leopard to change its spots than for an actor to get out of his type. Consider the case of Monroe Owsley, who went to Hollywood to play Ann Harding's brother in "Holiday" (and did a good job of it), but who is now about ready to call it quits.

Sometime back he finally won a sympathetic lead opposite Joan Crawford in "This Modern Age" but now, in the retakes, he will finish up as the heavy.

"I'm tired of being the society

English actor, who has just been chosen to play opposite Pola Negri in "A Woman Commands."

The honor comes to him after only one previous picture, "The Sphinx Has Spoken" or "Wine in the Blood" as it is now called. He was put under contract by RKO after coming to this country to appear in Noel Coward's "Private Lives." Before that he was Captain Stanhope in the original London production of "Journey's End."

He is described as the Ronald Colman type. Almost every studio in Hollywood was trying to borrow him when RKO concluded its deal. He is married to Jill Esmond, who is also under contract to Radio.

Carole Lombard was seasick all the way back from Honolulu returning from her honeymoon with Bill Powell.

DECIDE ON LIVABLE LIVING ROOMS FOR NEXT FARM PROJECT

The Home Council of Greene County is announcing the major project for the women of the county for this year to be entitled "Livable Living Rooms", according to Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent. Although the entire project will include all problems pertaining to living rooms, the subjects to get special emphasis this year will be window treatments and arrangement of living room furniture.

The Home Extension Council members are representatives from each of the eleven townships who act in an advisory capacity for the organization of the work in their respective townships. She studies the needs of the women in her township and advises with the Home Agent the type of projects in her community. The members are: Mrs. Ernest Bradford, Beavercreek Twp., president; Mrs. Elton Haines, Caeyarcreek Twp., secretary-treasurer; Mrs. D. C. Bradtke, Cedarville Twp.; Miss Margaret Lackey, Rosa Twp.; Mrs. Chas. Leach, Silvercreek Twp.; Mrs. W. C. St. John, New Jasper Twp.; Mrs. A. E. Beam, Spring Valley Twp.; Mrs. Chas. Kable, Sugarcreek Twp.; Mrs. W. G. Cooper, Bath Twp.; Mrs. L. H. Jones, Miami Twp., and Mrs. John Ray, Xenia Twp.

In discussing this project for the coming year the council members emphasized especially making the subject matter practical. Miss Anne Bierlicher, home furnishing specialist and Ruth Radford, home demonstration agent, are keeping this suggestion in mind in preparing the subject matter for these two parts of the "Livable Living Rooms" project.

MUST LIST EXPENSE

All of the seven City Commission candidates whose names appeared on the ballots at last Tuesday's municipal primary election are required to file campaign expense accounts with the board of elections within ten days after the primary, Earl Short, clerk of the board, advised Friday. The expense statements should list all campaign receipts and expenditures.

GILLETTE announces an entirely new razor blade—the Blue Super-Blade—now made in addition to the regular Gillette blade. Extra in quality, new in appearance, new in results—it costs just a little more and is the finest, keenest, smoothest-shaving blade ever produced.

The Blue Super-Blade is blue and inclosed in a Cellophane-wrapped blue package. You can't mistake it. It's easy to identify. And the difference is amazing when you guide it across your face. There is no harshness—no smart or burn. It whiskers through your beard smoothly, lightly.

An entirely new scientific manufacturing method produces this superior blade. Never before has it been possible to make a blade of such high quality and remarkable uniformity.

Prove that here at last is a blade kind to tender skin. You pay only a few cents more for marvelous shaving comfort. Your dealer sells it on a positive guarantee. If you don't agree that this blade gives you the finest shaves you ever had—if it isn't actually worth far more than its slightly extra price—return the package to your dealer and get all of your money back.
